

Rosehip Juice with vitamin C

Wild rose is a unique plant not only because of its decorative qualities. Its pseudo-fruits are a real treasure of well-absorbed vitamin C. Even 3 pieces can cover the daily requirement for this compound. Other ingredients include carotenoids – improving skin tone, pectins – helping to lower blood cholesterol, as well as vitamins

E and K and B vitamins.

Research shows that, thanks to the galactolipid content, wild rose has anti-inflammatory properties. It is used for a sore throat or indigestion. The plant is also appreciated by people suffering from atherosclerosis due to the flavonoids contained in it that reduce the reactivated oxygen from the blood. In addition, flavonoids also exhibit antioxidant properties.

Our product is a combination of 99.95% rosehip juice (Rosa canina) and vitamin C, thanks to which it supports your immunity even better! In addition, vitamin C supports the work of the nervous system, protects cells against oxidative stress and the proper production of collagen. It also helps to reduce the feeling of fatigue!
